

VAhelp.US Website

Bill Gladwin 3/26/25

Veterans often face significant challenges in accessing the services and resources available to them, including their Veterans Service Officer, VA Centers, healthcare, local employment assistance, housing support, and mental health services. The fragmentation of these resources across different organizations and government agencies creates barriers to effective support. To address this issue, I developed VAhelp.US, a comprehensive digital platform designed to streamline access to essential services for veterans nationwide. By integrating a user-friendly interface with multiple connections to verified resources, my program is designed to allow veterans to efficiently locate and connect with the assistance they need. The program developed, personalized recommendations in order to enhance usability and effectiveness. This paper discusses the motivation behind the program, its development process, and its potential impact on improving veterans' quality of life. My goal is to bridge the gap between veterans and the support systems in place for them, ensuring that no one is left behind in their transition to civilian life.

Problem:

Veterans and others find it difficult to find these resources when trying to search through hundreds of web pages. With the volume of information on the world wide web, it can get overwhelming to find the information you need. I have been working on a web site for Veterans. www.VAhelp.us . On this site there are relevant links for veterans to access. Research has been done to provide quick access for the veteran's needs.

Background:

I have spent countless hours researching and working on what I believe will be the one site for veterans in this country to use. Each state will have direct links to Veteran Service Officers, Veteran Benefits, Locations to Veteran Health Administration, Community Based Outpatient Clinics, Every Veteran Centers for that state, National Cemetery Administration and useful links to the O*Net website.

Purpose:

I want to provide quick access to this information without the need to go through searches of multiple pages containing information they need.

Proposed Solution:

Quick access links to National web sites that provide essential information and State information for the Veterans Service Officer(s) and Benefits of the Veterans Service.

Also relevant positions/jobs of particular industries. Specifically Accommodations, Agriculture, Arts and Entertainment, Companies Enterprises, Construction, Corporate Environments, Educational, Finance-Insurance, Government, HealthCare, Information, Manufacturing, Mining Quarrying, Professional. Real Estate, Remediation, Retail Trade, Transportation, Utilities , Wholesale Trade and Other Services.

On the left of the site, you will notice many different industries that Veterans or anyone for that matter, that can research jobs associated with that industry. For example, if you click on Construction, on the right are the reinvent positions for construction. On the far right are the latest job posting by O*Net.

Conclusion:

I have been working with many Veterans on the design and solution of www.VAhelp.US. They find this to be a very helpful website, which is what I am trying to accomplish. Why am I doing this? Because I want to give back to our heroes in this country. My Dad served in WWII, My brother served in Vietnam , my other brother and sister both served in the reserves. Myself, well this is my contribution. This site is of no cost to anyone.
